Thanks for allowing us to be OF SERVICE!

(We are Accountable, Continued)

One of the promises of the A.A. program is that” We will not regret the past nor wish to shut the door on it”, and I believe I have reached that level of growth; however, I do have deeds in my past that I regret having done, and they can never be erased. I have discussed those things with trusted advisors over the years, and we conclude that admitting and being accountable for those things is a good start, but what can be done about those deeds that can’t be mended? They can never be erased, but they can be resolved by replacing my old selfish habits with new, unselfish deeds, spiritual in nature, that allow me to repay my debt (one pebble at a time) to the many people less fortunate than myself, that can use a hand up. This can be done in a spiritual or in a material way, whichever the situation requires. By doing this anonymously and without fanfare it allows me to balance the scales and to heal my conscience. I try to be kind and understanding; I do my best to be an asset and never a liability. I try to bring more to the table than I take away. I always try to be honest with myself about my motives. In these endeavors, perseverance and time will heal the guilt and shame. I believe I will always have some regrets about having done those things, but I will not be plagued by them. Today, I am right with myself and with the world. I am a very grateful alcoholic today, only because I contracted the disease of alcoholism in my youth, suffered desperation, forced myself to resort to swallowing my pride, came to AA, recognized the value of surrendering to it, and the desire to live a life at peace. I try to go through each day without doing anything I REGRET. Today, I am happy and content, and I can’t imagine ever having found an approach to life that could have come anywhere close to the life I live today as the result of taking these steps and practicing these principles in all my affairs, and today, I wouldn’t trade places with anyone in the world.
